

Residents delighted with new Metrotile roof at Care Home in South Wales.

In the tranquil hills of South Wales, you'll find the modern Llys Glyncoed Care Home. In a place where residents move to live comfortably and receive the additional support, care, and, most importantly, safety they deserve – the building they live in should be able to provide this peace of mind as well. Llys Glyncoed Care Home was carefully designed to be both secure and cosy for the residents, which is exactly what having the durable, sleek Metrotile Woodshake tile could provide for them. This roofing solution not only meets our high standards for durability but also adds an aesthetic touch to the complex.

With a 40-year manufacturer's warranty and a proven track record of success on public and residential buildings across the UK, the Metrotile roof provides unmatched durability. The Woodshake profile closely resembles traditional wooden shingles, thanks to the deep lines pressed into each ZAM-coated steel profile, creating enhanced shadow definition. Unlike wooden roofing that requires frequent replacement, the Metrotile roof can withstand the test of time and weather conditions for decades.

The complex design of the care home roof was no issue for main contractor M. Camelleri & Sons who undertook the project and found the Metrotile system low-maintenance and easy to install, allowing Llys Glyncoed Care Home residents to fully embrace the relaxed pace of life and beauty of the Welsh countryside and not be disrupted whilst the installation took place.
